PANDA GARDEN

1606 SECOND AVENUE (Between 83rd & 84th Street)

Restaurants: BRUCE SINCLAIR, Former Dining Editor of Cue

This place originally opened as The Flying Tiger. Tigers, however, are deemed unlucky by the Chinese; pandas, on the other hand, are okay—thus the new name. Monikers aside, this is one of the best Chinese restaurants in New York, and it puts many of the chichi midtown oriental dining palaces to shame.

The restaurant is spacious, pretty and extraordinarily comfortable. It is a high-ceilinged room, with a window wall curtained with lacy ecur, subdued lighting, and a lively, ingratiating staff.

MARTIN BURDEN, Dining Editor of N.Y. Post

Panda worth a visit. It is handsome place.

The Spacious dining spot has the same contemporary nonethnic design with glassshaded candles on the tables, wide curved chairs, a few potted plants, floor-to-ceiling and wall-to-wall windows. And the menustresses Hunan and Szechuan Specialties. These are indicated by the usual red stars.

The same a la carte menu is used throughout the day. A favorite of ours - chunks of beef - sauteed with orange - flavored sauce; bean curd cooked in hot spicy sauce, with crab meat and black mushroom; whole sea bass crispy deep-fried and served with hot sauce; General Tso's Chicken. Not everything is tongue-tingling. There are the Lemon Chicken, deep fried and topped with a lemon sauce; crispy-fried prawns with walnuts.

Dining With Stendahl — Dining Editor of Daily News

Elegant and spacious; food on a par with Chinatown.

MARINADE

1 Cup Oyster Sauce
1/2 Cup Low-Sodium Soy Sauce
1/4 Cup Garlic, minced
1 1/4 Cup Sugar
1/4 Cup Coarse Ground
Black Pepper
1 Cup Canola Oil
Mix everything together.

Pour over steaks and let marinate at least 3 hours.

THAI LIME DIPPING SAUCE

1/2 Cup Fresh Lime Juice
1/2 Cup Fish Sauce
3/4 Cup Sugar
2T Chili Flokes
1T Shallots, minced
1t Garlic, minced
1T Mint, chopped
Mix everything together.

6 10-ounce Sirloin Steaks

This is a great, simple grilled steak with some Asian flair. Just marinate the steaks, fire up the bbq or broiler and grill to your desired doneness. Serve with the Thai lime dipping sauce, some of your favorite grilled veggies and a fresh market green salad. Have a few Singha beers on ice to crack open when the steaks are done, or go a little more decadent with an earthy pinot noir.
